Cure for Domestic Unhapplaces.

The law of love was given as a priu ciple, and a spirit which should rule the christian life and the righteonsness of the eliristian is to be measured by the fi delity with which he adheres to this supreme standard. In this new dispensation a breach of the law of love is siu equally with the violation of the letter of the Jewish law. Apply this principle to the home lile of the christiau, and you at once touch the root of the difficulty in domestic infelicity. The husband or the wife who continually commits acts discourtesy in the privacy of the home circle, or indulges habitually in cross words, or who persists in thoughtlessness or neglect, is guilty of sin equally with one who breaks the Sabbath, and perhaps We once heard of a family who spent in the eye of God has committed the their summer evenings at the front door, deeper wrong.
